Every line of escape thus was closed and the real work of capture begun. Up to dark tonight no news had reached here as to the success of the sortie. The Hillsville townspeople manifested intense interest and many remained up beyond their usual retiring hour to hear the news by the determination of the questions of the capture. They predict a desperate battle when the detectives come upon the outlaws.

If the men are as closely trapped as the detectives calculate, a battle to death to the court, it involves twelve or thiris imminent. Both Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards have declared, according to reports from the mountains, that they never would be taken alive.

Claude and Friel Allen remain in the Hillsville jail. It had been expected they would be transferred to Roanoke today, but every available detective in town was hurried out to the mountains to assist in the capture of the two remaining outlaws. They probably will be taken under heavy guard to Roanoke tomorrow.

Old Man Offers to Aid.

A picturesque old character drifted into town this morning. He was six feet tall with a gray beard, glistening blue eyes and was attired in an overall suit and a wide sombrero.

"Strangers." he said to a group of detectives and newspaper correspondents, the criminal courts in the District, before "they call me Big Ed Miller and I come whom all prisoners now in jail would Carolina, close by the Tennessee line. In the Johnson case, the presiding justice of the District Supreme Court ruled that the jury could not qualify its verdict by adding the words "without capital punishment." But since that ruling was made two other justices of the same court have held that the jury may so qualify its verdict. This has raised such an important issue and difference of opinion that lawyers desire to have the question passed upon by the highest

Labor Controversy. ADDRESS IN PHILADELPHIA

> PHILADELPHIA, March 30 .- President Taft was in an optimistic frame of mind tonight when he faced several hundred nembers of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce in the bourse here. He told them he believed the people were on the eve of better times, that things were growing better, and that he believed there would be no great coal strike. He said ne had no jurisdiction in settling strikes, and knew enough to wait to see if you
